NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Primary basic conditions, upon which all business activity must depend, are so substantial that an expanding prosperity of general scope may be predicted for the fall and winter months, Thomas J. Watson, president of the International Business Machine Corporation, declared today in an exclusive interview with International News Service.

"The American workman," Mr. Watson declared, "with his high wage scale and record-breaking average savings, is the fundamental cause for the present-day prosperity, which will continue well into the future. 'Wage scales, according to the United States census of manufactures have shown the striking increase of 120 per cent during a period from 1914 to 1927. With the average individual wage rate expanding in this time from $590 per worker to $1300 per worker. Today, the individual wage is even higher, showing a noticeable percentage increase semi-annual period.'"

Basing his opinion concerning home conditions on surveys conducted by more than one thousand representatives of his organization, located in the principal cities throughout the United States and Canada, Mr. Watson stated that immediate reports show better employment conditions than at any time during the last three years.

The banking systems of the country and their progressive attitude in relation to business clients constitute one of the most important agencies in the improved economic structure, their increased stability and efficiency affording business prosperity a sound basis upon which to expand, said Mr. Watson. Adequate transportation, including the facilities provided by the airplane, is also making a valuable contribution to business and industrial progress, he pointed out.

Mr. Watson is especially enthusiastic concerning the export future of America's industrial output, forming his opinion upon a personal business survey in Europe, just completed, and also upon reports from hundreds of representatives of his organization who are in contact with more than seventy countries, exclusive of the United States, in which products of the International Business Machine factories are being used.

Al Jolson's Famous Picture Opens Here On Monday

Manager Edward Lynn of the Grand Theatre, arranged Monday as the opening date for Al Jolson's Vitaphone singing picture success, "Say It With Songs" in which he is supported by his world-famous little pal, Davey Lee. The picture will be shown Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Jolson's new picture begins in a broadcasting station. As Joe Lane, a popular radio entertainer and song writer, Jolson has any number of opportunities to sing—as only Jolson can sing—and his audiences are going to be thankful for the whirlwind, singing opening of "Say It With Songs," and for the gales of melody that sweep it to its climax.

That Jolson is a master of pathos as well as comedy was conclusively proved by "The Jazz Singer" and "The Singing Fool" and Warner knew that the whole range of human emotions might be included in it. In selecting a story for the famous star they knew that the public demands above else, whatever the story, that Jolson sing—and sing—and sing again.

"Say It With Songs" is an altogether different type of story from Jolson's two previous pictures but it has an even more universal appeal. It deals with a father's love and sacrifice for his boy—and the boy of course is David Lee—every father's son.

Jolson started his new picture the most enthusiastic member of the crew and cast and he so continued to the end. He likes to work and he is almost wholly without "temperament" or nerves. If he is sometimes hard to please it is because he aims at perfection.

Ishbel MacDonald to Wed Lord Arnold

When Miss Ishbel MacDonald (inset) parried women reporters during the ten days her father's party was in the United States, her rosy tongue must have been in her rosy Scotch cheek. For the man she plans to marry was at her side. He is Lord Arnold, paymaster general, "unofficially attached" to the Prime Minister's party. Ishbel was telling the truth when she denied an "engagement," for the "understanding" between them will only become an engagement when formally announced, and Ishbel plans just such an announcement immediately on her return to England from Canada in the first week of November. This fact, and the story of the seven-year romance of a girl and a man who had to change his politics to win the object of his devotion, was learned from sources closest to the MacDonald family, and the facts are borne out by friends of Lord Arnold. Ishbel's intended husband is fifty-one. He is a wealthy stockbroker and Prime Minister MacDonald's devoted friend.

STRIDES BEING MADE IN AGRICULTURE BY SOVIETS

Miraculous Advancement Under the Collective Farming Policy is Explained

GROUP AT FARM SCHOOL

FARM SCHOOL, Pa., Oct. 19.—Miraculous strides being made by Soviet Russia in agricultural advancement under the collective farming policy were mentioned here yesterday when a group of well known Russian agronomists visited National Farm School on the first of a series of inspection tours to be made in the United States during the next four months to study modern farm methods.

Led by Alexander Koveleff, of Moscow, and escorted here by their interpreter, S. Arons, of Salskousj, Inc., of New York City, the Russians spent an interesting day viewing Farm School's modern 1100-acre school plant. They left here for Washington where they will be received by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The Russian agronomists are sent to America by the Producers' Co-operative Association of Russia. Each member of the group is a leader or manager of a farm in their native land. Every phase of agriculture will be studied in America.

"We have been particularly impressed with the work being done at National Farm School," said Mr. Koveleff, leader of the group. "The school is very unique and practical in every sense of the word. It is a success because the students not only are taught in the classroom but do the actual work on the soil themselves. I would think that a school like Farm School would be a big benefit if established in every state in the United States."

Speaking of the collective farm policy in Soviet Russia today, Mr. Koveleff said that the story of Russia is so often misrepresented that it is a pleasure to come to America and tell the real facts about agricultural advancement in that country.

"Under the revolution period in Russia the rich class alone controlled all the land," Mr. Koveleff explained. "The peasants had no chance. Under the collective farm policy the land is pooled and if a farmer desires to work he is allotted a certain amount of land in turn for which the Soviet government gives him credit to buy machinery. The best of seeds is furnished for the crop by the government and the farmers are organized into large groups."

"During the period ending October 1, 1927, there were 12,000 collective farms in Russia with a total acreage of 1,500,000. A year later on October 1, 1928, there were 28,000 collective farms with an acreage of 5,400,000. On October 1, this year, there were 100,000 collective farms with 12,000,000 acres of land under cultivation."

"In this group of farmers are those who had land but had not tools or horses with which to work the soil and those who had but one horse but no tools. This class represents about 75 per cent of the agricultural class of Russia, who before the collective farming policy went into operation, produced just enough to live on themselves."

"The result has been that in 1928 in Russia the production of surplus wheat alone amounted to 17,000,000 bushels and this year, 1929 the surplus will reach 70,000,000 bushels. Those engaged in collective farming are not only taking care of their (Continued on Page Three)

He plowed a clover sod and applied 700 pounds of a 4-8-10 fertilizer in the row. He also used ten tons of manure per acre. The potatoes were cultivated three times, weeded ten times and sprayed fourteen times.

This is the highest record made in Bucks county.

Charles Miller, of Spinnerstown, was also up among the leaders with 520 bushels per acre, the second highest yield in the county.

BURLINGTON CYCLIST EN ROUTE AROUND WORLD

Lieut. MacLennan Has Visited Canada and New England States

CHAINED TO HIS WHEEL

Lieutenant A. D. MacLennan, a resident of 446 West Broad street, Burlington, N. J., has covered Canada and the New England States, on the first leg of his motorcycle trip around the world.

The cyclist's trip is an unusual one, in that he is to be chained to his vehicle for the entire journey which will take him throughout the eastern and western hemispheres.

The western states are to be toured next, before the mad ride about the countries of Europe.

A few days ago Lt. MacLennan visited his home town, having alterations made to one of his coats. While on his ride through New England he found the piece of wearing apparel was a trifle heavy, and it was hard to remove because of the shackles. While here he had the seams ripped in the sleeves and at the back. He decided to have buttons sewed on the ripped seams in order that the garment might be more easily manipulated.

While in New York State the traveler's companion deserted him. He quickly secured another one, however, in the person of Samuel Arno, 18 years old, who lives near the home of MacLennan, in Burlington. It has been decided to leave the pet monkey which the cyclist has taken with him, in Burlington. The "monkey" does not like cold weather, so he will remain at home.

The shackles which fasten the lieutenant to his motorcycle were made by John Carlini, blacksmith located at High and Wall streets, Burlington.

It is expected by MacLennan that he will cover 500,000 miles before the trip is completed. The extra mileage will cover tours into many countries and cities. The trip is being financed through the sale of souvenir postcards. Indian motorcycle dealers everywhere have been instructed by the Indian motorcycle factory to give him every possible assistance.

BRISTOL AND DOYLESTOWN PLAY SCORELESS TIE

H. S. Eleven Surprises Fans by Holding Down Strong Visiting Eleven

VISITORS MUCH HEAVIER

By T. M. Juno
Playing in the role of "underdog," the Bristol High School eleven surprised many football rosters of this section by holding the fast Doylestown team to a scoreless tie.

When the teams lined up for the opening kickoff, the spectators began to turn psychologist and insisted that the Cardinal and Gray team would not have a show because of the immense size of the visitors compared to the locals. Some of the gentry were even stating the invaders would triumph by a margin of five or six touchdowns.

Although with their back towards the wall, Captain Driess and his pals fought to the last ditch and even outplayed their heavier opponents in the second half and came within an inch of scoring a touchdown.

The team realized that the Bucks County rivalry had concocted an interesting situation and so attained the proper mental attitude by giving their best.

Doylestown on the other hand seemed very anxious to attain a victory and in their anxiety to register a touchdown missed several opportunities to score. The visitors showed some real grit and fighting spirit in the third quarter when with but four yards to go and four downs to make a touchdown they held Bristol for downs and then the fullback booted the pigskin away from the danger line.

Doylestown had the ball in its possession but once during the third session and at that moment was forced to kick. But the eleven came right back in the final canto and almost put a score across.

In the first half the Doylestown team had a slight edge, thanks to some wonderful open field running by Ruberman and Nelson. Tullio was Bristol's best here, doing a fine job of breaking up the visitors' line and never failing to get his man on a returned punt. Davis made a few large holes to enable the Bristol backs to slip through.

The locals missed an opportunity to count in the third quarter. Receiving the pigskin their forty yard line, the Bristol backs with Tranotti doing the bulk of the job, picked hole after hole and pounded the visitors' line until the twenty-five yard line was reached. Here the attack changed and an aerial Lafferty to Gaffney, netted twenty yards and put the ball on the five yard chalkmark. Gaffney made a beautiful catch of the forward. The Bristol team huddled four times and when the four down was ended the ball was but an inch from the goal. But most of the credit for Bristol advancing this far must be attributed to the line who made some nice big holes to help the backs along.

Doylestown reached the four yard line in the last quarter but Bristol's stubborn line failed to yield and so the guests left the town, contented with a tie score and satisfied with the good sportsmanship displayed by the locals.

Diel was the only member of either team to suffer an injury. He injured his hip, but will be ready for his team's next game.

TRAVELOGUES ARE GIVEN AT MEETING OF TRAVEL CLUB

Two Members Describe Interesting Tours Which They Enjoyed During Past Summer

ELECT 10 NEW MEMBERS

Mrs. Horace Burton and Mrs. Lester D. Thorne Are The Speakers

Two delightful travelogues were enjoyed by members of the Bristol Travel Club at their bi-weekly meeting in the Travel Club home, yesterday afternoon. The participants in the afternoon's program were Mrs. Horace Burton, who told of a trip enjoyed during the past summer through the western section of the United States and portions of Canada; and Mrs. Lester D. Thorne, who described travels abroad indulged in a few months ago.

Mrs. Burton touched the highlights of her lengthy trip, and showed pieces of interest that had been purchased en route, as well as pictures.

Leaving this section on July 7th the Burtons made stops at Buffalo, Chicago, and other large cities. Colorado Springs were visited, where a ride to the top of Pike's Peak at an altitude of 14,000 feet was enjoyed. Albuquerque proved of interest, where through the purchase of pottery some Indian woman consented to pose for snap-shots.

The Grand Canyon of the Colorado was dwelt upon, having been found to be all that was expected with its general coloring of dark red. Only one uncomfortable day was experienced on the lengthy trip, according to the traveler, this being while en route to San Bernardino, when the temperature was terrific.

A motor trip to San Diego giving the first glimpse of the Pacific Ocean was taken. Mrs. Burton telling of her enjoyment of an airplane ride from that city over the peaceful ocean. Next of interest was a Mexican border town, with its quaint shops and dark-skinned residents.

From Los Angeles a ride by boat to Catalina Island was taken, where sea flora were viewed from glass-bottomed boats.

Santa Barbara, especially, was enjoyed by Mrs. Burton and her husband, and at yesterday's session she described the lovely gardens found in the sections with many cactus gardens on large estates. A ride was taken about Monterey Peninsula with its rocky bays, and then on to San Francisco, Yosemite National Park, Portland, Seattle, and Vancouver followed in succession, being followed by a jaunt through the Canadian Rockies to Banff and Lake Louise.

The first part of call of Mrs. Thorne while traveling with her husband some months ago was at Cherbourg, France. In describing the ride through Normandy, Mrs. Thorne particularly stressed the beautiful fields filled with poppies. The houses and stables were spoken of as being connected throughout France, and the speaker mentioned the way in which many of the French women do their laundry upon stones in the many streams.

A lengthy stop was made in Paris where the many points of interest were not missed. Versailles and Nice claimed some of the time of the two Bristolians, while a ride along the Riviera was thoroughly enjoyed, the blue waters of the Mediterranean pleasing all.

Monte Carlo was reached over a mountain drive, and later the leaning tower of Pisa was pointed out. Passing through many tunnels Genoa was reached, and Italy was found to be well policed with soldiers everywhere. While in Rome the two paid a visit to the Coliseum at night-time, being shown the dens where the lions were kept, and the quarters where the Christians were held.

Mrs. Thorne delighted all with her account of the many cities of Europe and the pretty rides through the lowland and mountain sections of the many countries.

During the business meeting, presided over by Mrs. Frank Lehman, resignations of three members were accepted with regret, and ten others were elected to membership. Members were also appointed for the house committee.

THOSE WHO JEER

Fortunately for the human race the smart alecks have about as much influence upon the general course of events as they deserve. The work of the world is done by level-headed folk, all much too busy to pay attention to the glib sneerer perched on a fence rail, whose life consists of criticizing what he would never be able to do himself.

The service or luncheon clubs are favorite objects of derision. For one thing, they have ideals of honesty, fairness and service to a community—which, tickle the ribs of the scoffers so that they fairly explode with sarcasm. For another, they hold meetings and conventions and have certain rules of business conduct—all very laughable.

Ideals never quite square with conduct, as most people know. The service clubs do not profess to work miracles. The practical test which every intelligent person would apply to their creeds is, not whether they are always lived up to, but whether their influence does accomplish some good. Anybody who knows the small town and the small city, not condescendingly but understandingly, will have no doubt of the answer.

These groups of men and women have helped set higher ethical standards in professions and in business. By the forces that reside in cooperation, in group sentiment, these organizations have unquestionably improved the work of the world.

That is far more worth doing than to twirl one's fingers over a typewriter and occasionally tick off a jeer. There is only one test which is worth putting to such a movement. Is it sincere? If it is not, then by all means attack with all the barbs of ridicule. If it is, then cheap jibes at its members or its utterances because they are not clever or of speech are about as sensible as to criticize an elephant for his bulk.

RECOGNIZE BILLBOARD EVIL

Among the organizations to enlist in the campaign against misuse of billboards is the National Association of Real Estate Boards. Through its committee on city planning and zoning it has issued a statement to its members calling attention to the fact that because of the position of realtors as custodians of property, they are vitally interested in the control of billboards, the removal of signs along public highways, and opposed to the painting of rocks and the mutilation of nature on property belonging to the people.

In many localities the billboard evil is becoming less important, due largely to the standards of practice adopted by the Outdoor Advertising Association a year or so ago, and approved by many individuals and corporations interested in the matter. Until comparatively recently the billboard and poster interests paid little attention to public protest. The evil spread until finally public protest became unitedly coherent and threatened regulatory legislation unless the industry itself recognized the rights of others. Users of outdoor advertising also were recruited in the campaign.

Reform of this sort cannot come overnight, of course. The evil is too deep-seated. Actually, great strides have been taken in a comparatively short time. But the movement needs, and should have the support of every citizen and group interested in preserving what natural beauty remains in this highly commercialized land.

"It's going to cost a lot of money, you know, Jerry," he objected.
"I know, Uncle Steve, but I don't want any birthday gift. It isn't as if I want anything for myself. I want my friends—and you—to have a good time. Anyway, it won't cost you as much as you think because I can get most everything at a reduced rate. Don't you see?"
Steve nodded, but he did not look happy about it.

"Of course, if you don't care to, I'll pay for it myself. I want to treat the gang on the great occasion."

"All right, then," he said. "But no more parties for a while—and no more presents. Remember that." Jerry knew that he had not the least idea what it was really going to cost him, and she wanted it to be that way. It would be best to surprise him with the bill when the party was over. In the meantime, she had his consent to go ahead, and that was all that mattered just then.

"My best wishes on your birthday, my dear," Steve greeted her. "You look simply stunning tonight!"

She described to Wally every expression that crossed his face while he was making the decision, and for the first time in two weeks Wally really felt that they were getting somewhere. He could not help suspecting that in another day Jerry would have made an end of the tangle, and he and Violet could be happily married. Violet, too, was happier than she had been in a long time when she saw how optimistic Jerry had suddenly become. And Mabel, who, as she said, "knew the ways of men," predicted that all would be well in twenty-four hours. Hadn't she met men like Lee before? There was a point at which they always tended to revert to their former natures, no matter how much of a change had occurred. Now there was her first husband who was so nice when she married him. He simply adored her—or said he did—for some time after their marriage, but after a few months something he said made her realize why his attitude toward her really was changing. He had never liked dogs in his life, and it was too late to learn now. She was glad she found it out in time, before poor Rover became a total wreck. It was the same with Uncle Steve. He was actually a prude who was on a spree. Something—something—somewhere—would have to shock him. In her estimation he was just about at the point where a blow would put him back where he was two weeks ago, and that blow was going to be the party, or she was no judge of men.

On the night of the party, Jerry arranged to have the Rolls Royce waiting for her after the theatre. She sent herself half a dozen tremendous bouquets of flowers in which she inserted cards to which she signed men's names. All of them bore little notes something like this:

To Jerry—with my love.
To the sweetest girl in the world.
To a regular pal.
To a good sport.

She put on her new gown and Friendly Society. Games were enjoyed and refreshments were served. The guests included: Misses: Isabel Gill, Margaret Perry, Helen Peron, Rose Stemeley, Mrs. Helen Buchanan, Mrs. Thelma Reitz, Mrs. Thomas Schaff, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brien, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Longhurst, of Hulmeville, and Miss Sue Froelich, of South Langhorne.

Many are planning to attend the musical and play to be presented by the Epworth League in the Methodist Church next Saturday evening. "The Florist Shop," the one act play will please all. Musical numbers will include violin solos, piano solos and duets, selections with guitar auto-harp and other instruments, as well as vocal numbers. Tickets are now on sale.

"Since the policy of the Soviet government is to assist her people the entire peasantry for the first time flocking to the government for assistance and Russia is working overtime agriculturally. The yield per acre under the system of collective farming is 25 per cent higher than produced on farms not in the collective group.

"Our reason for coming to America is to see the modern farm machinery in actual operation, to study farm methods, co-operative marketing in the western United States and to return to Russia with a program that will be carried out by the introduction of modern American farm machinery and methods. The time is not far distant when Russia will be exporting large quantities of wheat as she did in former years when Russia fed Europe."

USED CARS

Our policy in selling used cars is just what you would hope

WHEN you buy a car which has passed from the hands of its first owner, you would like to be sure of two things. First—you want to know, of course, that the used car you buy has a generous amount of unused mileage in it. Second—you hope you are not being charged for an excessive trade-in allowance which the dealer may have made in order to sell a new car. In short, that you are paying just what the used car is worth.

The Ford dealer's policy in selling used cars is exactly what you would hope to find. For instance, when we sell a Model T Ford which has been traded in for a Model A, that used car has been thoroughly and carefully reconditioned. With it goes a guarantee. When we sell used cars of other makes (and we have many kinds traded in for Model A Fords) we tell you frankly what you may expect, and the price is based on the amount of mileage we think you'll get from that car.

Regarding the price of the used cars we offer, you can be certain there has been no inflation to care for excessive trade-in allowances. The new Ford car is priced right—so close to the cost of production and selling that there is no margin, or leeway, for unreasonable trade-in concessions.

For these reasons it is worth your while to come to us when you are thinking of buying a used car. Nearly always we have a generous selection. Come in today and look over the following bargains in unused mileage:

1928 . . . . . Chrysler Sedan
1928 . . . . . Model A Ford Coupe
1925 . . . . . Model T Ford Coupe

1925 . . . . . Model T Ford Sedan
1926 . . . . . 1½-Ton Ford Truck

ST. ANN'S CONFIDENT OF VICTORY TOMORROW

By T. M. Juno

If the players of the Bristol-St. Ann's team are dismayed at their defeat last Sunday, it is not shown by their actions. Last night when final practice was held for the Warrenton A. C. game this Sunday every player was full of pep and just anxious for the Sabbath Day fray.

Coach Fred Pieo put the boys through some signal, drilling and ordered the backfield to catch punts and hold on to the ball while crashing the line. Last week's defeat was the result of constant mishandling of the oval.

There is little fault found in the line which was greatly strengthened by the return of "Bill" Logan, former guard of the Bristol A. A. team. Along with Logan is "Benny" Praul, another over 250 pound guard with "Monk" Oriola between them. "Danny" Gregor and "Henny" Kornstedt are doing their duty at the tackle positions. Roe and Gilardi are the wingmen.

The backfield for this week's game will consist of Spadaccino, J. S. Fine, Cook and Paletta. "Al" Daniels has signed to become a backfield member.

Warrenton comes here with an observed record. The team won its first two games and then held the great Holmesburg eleven to a 12-0 score. The team played Doylestown last week. The outcome of this battle is not known by the writer.

Game begins at 2:30 p. m.

Christians Are Shirking Their Duty, He Says

The Rev. Harold St. Clair Carter, evangelist, who is conducting a series of meetings in the Methodist Church, again spoke last evening to a group gathered in the church here.

The subject last night was "The Christian's Greatest Duty."

The evangelist said in part: "No wonder the early church turned the world upside down and won it for Christ!"

"Why?" "Because every member of that church was a soul winner. They believed that when Jesus said 'Go ye and make disciples,' it was for them to do it and they did."

"Today we hide behind every form of so called Christian work to get out of winning men to Christ. We will sing in the choir, we will be a church official, we will work in the ladies' aid and do a thousand and one other things, but when it comes to going out and winning men to Christ we just won't and don't do it."

"But listen to me, this is our duty and God pity us if we fail to do what we know we ought to do. God's word says 'He that knoweth to do right and doeth it not to him it is sin,' and you know its your duty to do this work. Be mighty careful how you fail to follow what you know you ought to do."

"This work of winning souls is your responsibility. What if we neglect men. Don't you know they will die in their sins, don't you know they will go before God unprepared, don't you know that Jesus said, 'And he that believeth not shall be damned.' Oh, brothers, we don't believe this. That's the trouble today. We don't believe what we claim we do, for if you did you couldn't be as indifferent towards getting men to God as you have been."

"God help us in these passing days, to lay aside every weight and go after the lost souls around us and with God's help lead them to the Christ whom they need and must have."

Basic Conditions Are Substantial; Prosperity Sure

any belief in a so-called "antagonism" being shown against American products by foreign nations is very much exaggerated and generally a fallacious type of reasoning that should be eliminated from the American mind, by adequate publicity.

"The modern-day business man of the old world," said Mr. Watson, "is buying his equipment upon a level-headed basis of preferring the type of product that will mean the greatest efficiency to his own business methods. He welcomes American products, because he believes in their superior performance and because they are comparatively low-priced."

South American trade is one of the most fertile fields for foreign expansion, it is stated by Mr. Watson, who believes that the progressiveness of the people of these countries and their high scale individual prosperity compared favorably with those of the United States. This market, he says, has already been definitely established far ahead of export markets in other countries, and is capable of great expansion interests to adjust our production and distribution methods to their own fields. Great wealth, through valuable natural products, gives these countries a permanent prosperity upon which a definite program of selling can be safely predicted for years to come, Mr. Watson declared in conclusion.

THE HOME TOWNERS

BY JOHN LEARY PELTRET
FROM WARNER BROS. "ALL TALKING" VITAPHONE PICTURE
...BASED ON THE COMEDY BY GEORGE M. COHAN...

SYNOPSIS—Arnold, engaged, asks his friend Bancroft to bring his wife and the best man. Bancroft gets suspicious of the fiancée's family and tells Arnold; a row results. Arnold tries to square things with fiancée.

CHAPTER VII

THE father of Beth is wise and while Arnold is trying to get Beth to relent he keeps himself and his wife out of the argument. Once in a while they are tempted to speak, but do not. Then Arnold gives Calhoun the high sign for them to leave and they do. What Arnold wants is a chance to talk to Beth alone, thinking that he might bring her to his way of thinking.

WHEN father and mother have gone, Arnold goes over to Beth, takes her rather roughly by the shoulders and whirls her around so that she will face him. Then he gently takes her in his arms and tells her that the Bancrofts will be gone the day after the wedding and why not put up with them. After all he says it means happiness for both of them and their whole future.

BUT Beth will not give in. She pulls herself away and recalls the insults that Bancroft heaped on herself and the Calhouns. She asks Arnold if he thinks she has no red blood in her veins to submit to that. At the end of these remarks she says that she would rather break the engagement than give in and have the Bancrofts at the wedding. The words uttered, Beth was sorry.

AT this threat Arnold is repulsed. He urges Beth not to be foolish and sacrifice their happiness. She is obdurate. He tells her he does not altogether approve of the bridesmaid—she is dumb. Beth sniffs. Then Arnold asks if she thinks he has lemonade in his veins, says he has a temper, being sorely tried. Asks if she is serious about breaking with him. He might accept the break.
